Dear (J.C.):

Reference is made to our conversation of 22 November in which I requested permission to give the Legal Attache copies of photographs of a certain person who is known to you.

Attached are copies of each of the photographs we have with the dates of the visits stamped on the back.

At 6 p.m. Mexico time on 22 November, The Ambassador decided that this was important enough to have a member of the Legal Attache's office take copies of these pictures to Dallas, Texas. The Naval Attache is making a special flight from Mexico City for this purpose. The Legal Attache's officer who is going to Dallas has promised to mail this material to you for me.

Copies of these photographs are also being sent by pouch which will leave Mexico City on the night of 22 November 1963.

Best wishes,

(Win)

On 27 September 1963 a man later identified as OSWALD, telephoned the Soviet Embassy stating that he needed to get a visa to go to Odessa, USSR. A little while later a woman from the Cuban Consulate telephoned the Soviet Consulate stating that an American male had requested an in-transit visa for Cuba because he wanted to go to the USSR. The woman claimed that she had sent the American to the Soviet Embassy, saying that if the Soviets made or accepted the visa, the Cubans would also give it to him without further procedures. The woman from the Cuban Consulate wanted to know with whom the American had spoken when he visited the Soviet Consulate. Later in the day the Soviet Consulate telephoned the Cuban Consulate again regarding OSWALD's request for a visa, and mentioned the fact that the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D. C. had not as yet been authorized by Moscow to issue OSWALD a Soviet visa. Both consulates agreed that nothing can be done until they receive further advice from the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

ran out again in the direction of a neighborhood shopping area. Police Pvt. J. D. TIPPET, driving in a patrol car hailed OSWALD after hearing on his radio that a man of OSWALD's description was wanted. OSWALD talked to TIPPET for several minutes, and was arrested. TIPPET got out of his car and began to walk towards OSWALD, who pulled a pistol and fired three shots at TIPPET from a distance no greater than the width of TIPPET's car. TIPPET died almost instantly, and OSWALD darted off through a vacant lot where three spent cartridges were found. A shoe salesman noticed OSWALD as he slipped into a lobby between two display windows. Observing that OSWALD was disheveled, the shoe salesman decided to keep an eye on him and, when OSWALD managed to slip into a movie theater without paying, the shoe salesman told the cashier to call the police and he assisted an usher lock all the emergency exits of the theater. When the police arrived, the lights inside the theater were turned on. When ordered by the police to stand up, OSWALD said, "Well I guess it is all over now." OSWALD raised his hands, then made a fist and hit one of the policemen in the nose. He drew his pistol, but was overpowered by police officers, and arrested.

1963 continued 21 November	On 21 November 1963 OSWALD spent the night at the home of Mrs. Ruth PAINE in Irving, Texas, where his wife resided, and where he had stored his gun, rolled in a blanket, in the PAINE's garage.	Washington Post 1 December 1963
22 November	On 22 November 1963 OSWALD drove to the Texas School Book Depository Building in Dallas, Texas, with B. Wesley FRAZIER, who also worked in the building. OSWALD was carrying an ungainly package, and when FRAZIER asked him about the bundle OSWALD allegedly explained curtly that the bundle contained "windowshades."
	Shortly after 12:00 noon, Charlie GIVENS, a porter, saw OSWALD on the sixth floor of the Texas Book Depository Building, the floor from which the shots were fired at President KENNEDY.	Washington Post 1 December 1963
	At approximately 12:20, as President KENNEDY's motorcade was making a sharp S turn from Main Street in Dallas, Texas, three shots were fired, from a window on the sixth floor of the Texas Book Depository Building.	Washington Post 1 December 1963
	At the moment the shots were fired, Roy S. TRULY, director and superintendent of the Texas Book Depository, joined by policeman, ran into the building. As they made their way to a back stairway they saw OSWALD standing by a soft drink machine, sipping from a coke bottle. TRULY told the police that OSWALD was employed in the building, and they went on. OSWALD then left the building and took a bus headed for the Oak Cliff area of Dallas where he resided. As the bus moved slowly through the traffic he got out and took a taxi to a corner five blocks from his rooming house. At approximately 1:00 o'clock he ran into the rooming house where he was living, grabbed a zipper jacket, and

TIPPET, driving in a patrol car hailed OSWALD after hearing on his radio that a man of OSWALD's description was wanted. OSWALD talked to TIPPET for several minutes, and was arrested. TIPPET got out of his car and began to walk towards OSWALD, who pulled a pistol and fired three shots at TIPPET from a distance no greater than the width of TIPPET's car. TIPPET died almost instantly, and OSWALD darted off through a vacant lot where three spent cartridges were found. A shoe salesman noticed OSWALD as he slipped into a lobby between two display windows. Observing that OSWALD was disheveled, the shoe salesman decided to keep an eye on him and, when OSWALD managed to slip into a movie theater without paying, the shoe salesman told the cashier to call the police and he assisted an usher lock all the emergency exits of the theater. When the police arrived, the lights inside the theater were turned on. When ordered by the police to stand up, OSWALD said, "Well I guess it is all over now." OSWALD raised his hands, then made a fist and hit one of the policemen in the nose. He drew his pistol, but was overpowered by police officers, and arrested. At 7:15 P. M. OSWALD was formerly charged with the murder of Patrolman TIPPET. At 11:36 P. M. OSWALD was charged with the murder of John F. KENNEDY, President of the United States.	Washington Post 1 December 1963
23 November	At 11:19 on 23 November 1963 Jack RUBY shot OSWALD as he was being transferred to the Dallas County Jail, from the Dallas Police Station. Less than two hours later OSWALD died of massive internal injuries
